May Record of Southern Bell In dicates General Prosperity in the United States

Charlotte, N. C., June 15 .- "If the aggregate of business transacted by various telephone exchanges, locongress from the Third District. I cal and long distance, in the two will abide the rales, regulations and Carolinar comprising this district, is results of the Democratic Primary. any indication of growing prosperty, then the May record of the South ern Bell is one of gratifying pros-pect as compared with May of last year," declared H. L. Smith, comquarters in this city, Recently Mr. Smith has been spending some time going over the territory, which embraces the two states, and in con-nection with the duties he has visited quite a number of the more im-portant local exchanges of the great corporation). His estimate of the situation is therefore one of value. "I do not know whether you would consider increasing telephone growth generally throughout this district as an indication of improving times," continued Mr. Smith, "but the fact stands that the vacet stands. the fact stands that the record of May this year is substantially ahead of May last year and this improved condition is continuing. And better still applies to all lines of the busi-ness, to the number of exchanges as well as to the increase in the growth of the individual local. And the ratio in growth is fairly uniform, thereby indicating that the condition is generally and not confined to any one locality or section. I am of the belief that this record is one of interest as indicating general conditions because I know that it is true that whenever straightened circumstances or general bad times occur, that there is a decided curtailment in our operations. In other words, the I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election as Supervisor of Anderson County, subject to the fules of the Democratic Primary or better conditions."

HANDFUL HELD

A Thousand Frenchmen Tried to Hold Off Horde of Germans.

HAND TO HAND FIGHTING.

Besiegers Took to Using Liquid Fire and the Brave Defenders at Last Had to Give Way Before Tremendous Odds-Few Survivors Who Surrendered Were In Desperate Condition.

Fort Vaux, which was taken by the Germans in their advance toward Yerdun, France, had been practically besleged for ninety days before it fell. Paris newspapers estimate that it cost the Germans 100,000 men to capture the fort.

When the situation at last became critical the commandant, Chief of Battalion Raynal, a tried soldier, who had risen from the ranks, had hardly more than 1,000 men with whom to continue the defense. His task was to hold the half ruined fort against overwhelming masses of infantry, supported by more than 100 batterles of beavy guns. Re-enforcements could not reach him owing to the terrible efficacy of the German fire.

For a week, alone and unaided, he and his men held out against' very great odds. Two companies of Germans were already installed in a ditch of the northern bastion, and after three days that position had to be abandoned by the French.

Raynal then withdrew to the central redoubt. He was still able to communicate at night with the main body, and one of the last messages sent was that whatever happened he would nev-er surrender. He kept his word. Step by step the Germans advanced from the west and south, gradually narrowing the circle surrounding the fort.

Messengera Volunteer. Every night Raynal dispatched volunteer messengers to General Nivelle to inform him of the progress of events. Not one in five of these messengers got through. At 3:50 o'clock one morning an officer from the French lines managed in the darkness to crawl through the German cordon and reach the redoubt where Raynal was holding out. The German artillery was still pounding incessantly at the roofs of the vaults, where the garrison had taken refuge. The officer succeeded in returning to the French lines and reported the desperate condition of the survivors.

The fighting of the two previous days had been awful. Whole German regiments at one stage tried to advance against the western bastion, where two batteries of fieldpieces were posted. They were met with a point blank fire and annihilated. One company climb-ed to within sixty yards of the guns, but could get no farther. Several German assaults were repulsed only after violent hand to hand fighting.

When at last the assallants reached the principal entry they were met by a counterattack, the garrison making use of their rifle butts, knives and fists and even their steel hamets, which they held by the strap and swung like maces. The Germans employed lach-rymosal shells, bombs and liquid fire throwers to great numbers,

Gave Way Inch by Inch. Inch by inch the enfeebled defenders receded, and when at last, worn out by seven days' watching and fighting, they were incapable of further effort, fresh enemy troops rushed the fort and captured the handful of heroes who re fense. He has been wounded several times in the present war.

Seven days of terrific bombardment, added to many previous periods of hombardment of less intensity, had reduced the fort to little more than a rule. Its possession is still a matter of importance to the Verdun operations, however, because of the height which it crowns and from which is which it crowns and from which it had been able to streep the ravine to the north as well as the alopes of the Meuse heights to the east. Although the position, so far as nat-

Although the position, so far as natural defenses were concerned, was one of the most difficult to attack on this bank of the river, it was selected by the Germans in preference to other points of less natural strength because from its position on the extreme easi of the line it received the less support from the flanking batteries on the other bank.

Facing the Germens on the right bank of the river is the line from Froice Gerre to the forts of Souville and Tay these, both situated on heights of great hatural strength.

NEW DESIGNS CHOSEN FOR OUR SILVER COINS

Different Money Will Be Minted by Government After July 1.

Dimes, quarters and half dollars of new design will be minted after July 1, Secretary McAdoo announced the other day. For the first time since 1891 a change will be effected in thes pieces. The announcement disclosed that the half dollar has fallen prac-tically into disuse. The new design was selected with the hope of restor ing it to more general circulation.
Under the new coinage each piece will be of different design. The half dollar and dime models were made by Addiph A. Weinman and the quarter dollar by Bermon A. MacNell. Both are sculptors of note.

The face of the new half dollar bears a full length of Liberty, with a background of the American flag flying to the breeze. The goddess is striding toward the dawn of a new day, carrying laurel and oak branches, symbolic of civil and military glory. The reverse side shows an eagle perched high upon a mountain crag, wings unfolded Growing from a tift in the rock is a sapling of mountain pine, symbolic of America. The design of the eventy-five cent place is intended to typify the awaken ing of the country to its own protec-tion, Secretary McAdoo's announce-ment stated. Liberty, a full length figure, is shown stepping toward the country's gateway, bearing upraised a shield from which the covering is be-ing drawn. The right hand bears an olive branch of peace. Above the head is the word "Liberty" and below the feet "1916." The reverse bears the in-scriptions "United States of America" and "E Pluribus Unum." Both the helf dollar and the quarter bear the phrase 'In God We Trust." The design of the dime is simple. Liberty with a winged cap is shown on the fore side, and on the reverse is a design of a bundle of rods and a battle ax, symbolical of unity, "wherein lies the nation's strength."
